Description of Conference:

Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller invites you to attend the 2015 Criminal and Civil Justice Summit--Victims in the Indiana Justice System, at the Robert McKinney law school which will focus on victims. Participants will learn from experts in cross disciplinary fields of specialization ranging from trauma research to the legal rights of victims to approaches to services to help victims heal. Additionally, several new initiatives will be introduced, and proposals for legislation will be discussed. Speakers from the judicial system, universities, state-wide victim advocate groups, nationally recognized scholars, an international expert in the field of crimes against children and many others will make the summit valuable to participants.

The OAG values the input and participation of providers of services to victims from many disciplines and by bringing together specialized skills and knowledge the best policy ideas and proposals to improvements to our Indiana justice system will result.

Summit Attendees: This summit will especially benefit those from the following groups--victim advocates, domestic and sexual assault response workers such as SANE nurses, law enforcement including Sexual Assault Response Teams (SARTS), prosecutors, policy makers, members of the judiciary and anyone else interested in helping victims.
